A LOOK AT THE FUTURE OF THE REACH PROJECT
Presented by: 2018-19 Reach Project Researchers

ONE: REACH IN FRAGILE STATES
Fragile states are where reach is hardest to achieve, and yet, these are precisely where reaching the hardest to reach is imperative to facilitate inclusive growth and development. This session examines what we can learn from the private, public and civil society sectors about how to reach the hardest to each in the context of fragile states.

Led by: Jean-Nicolas Beuze, UNHCR Representative in Canada
Tara Nathan, Executive Vice President, Humanitarian & Development, Mastercard
James Thuch Madhier, Founder & Executive Director, Rainmaker Enterprise
Alan Hamson, Director of Strategic Planning and Coordination, Peace and Stabilization Operations Program, Global Affairs Canada

LUNCH BREAK
TWO: Cost of Reach

The marginal cost of covering the last mile is especially steep. If we aspire to achieve truly inclusive growth and development, we need to mitigate and better manage these costs. This session draws on policy experts, business thinkers, and civil society leaders to share ideas about how we can leverage policy knowledge with business strategic know-how to mitigate the cost of reach.

THREE: Reach at the Frontlines

Traversing the last mile means delivering products and services to the hardest to reach. Effective frontline service delivery is critical to reach, and yet it is often highly variable. In addition, those on the frontline are often the furthest from centrally based decision makers. This session brings together practitioners who have worked on the frontlines, to provoke discussion on how to ensure frontline workers are delivering high quality services that are responsive to local needs.
